

Working with under-5s by Judith Wigley

Series: Pretty Much Everything

Publication date: 4 August 2005

Readership: Anyone working with under 5s

Author Judith Wigley

A brilliant book for all busy children's workers - newcomers and the more experienced. It's jam-packed with very practical information in a highly accessible, easy-to-read format, plus photocopiable pages. Part 1 helps adults step inside the world of the child and understand their spiritual and physical development. Part 2 contains all the practical advice; planning and running programmes, using the Bible, prayer, worship and lots more. There is also important information about child protection legislation.

Judith Wigley has over 25 years experience working with under 5s. She worked alongside her husband in three large parishes before becoming full-time Children's Advisor in Wakefield Diocese and has written a number of books. She is now Otley Deanery Children's Worker.

This is a great book to help with understanding this age group within a spiritual context. There is solid Biblical teaching on this age group, looking at what the Bible says about children and Jesus' reaction to them and also looking at the Old Testament and the communal responsibility for the spiritual formation of children and the passing on of the faith.

The book is also packed full of tips and challenges on working with this age group and seeing the importance of these children within the church family, both on a Sunday and during the week. A very practical guide on working with under-5s.
