* Article 9 GDPR defines sensitive data as information about an individual's race, ethnic origin, politics, religion, trade union membership, genetics, biometrics (where used for ID purposes), health, sex life, or sexual orientation.

5. What is the legal basis for processing your personal data?

Organisations are permitted to process data if they have a legal basis for doing so. The Presbyterian Church in Ireland processes data on the basis that:

- Processing is necessary for the purposes of the legitimate interests pursued by PCI or a third party except where such interests are overridden by the interests, rights or freedoms of the data subject; and/or
- Express and informed consent has been given by the person whose data is being processed; and/or
- It is necessary in relation to a contract or agreement which the person has entered into or because the person has asked for something to be done so they can enter into a contract or agreement; and/or
- There is a legal obligation on the Presbyterian Church in Ireland to process data; and/or
- Processing is necessary to protect the vital interests of a data subject or another person.

Where we process special category sensitive data (under Article 9 of the GDPR) we process data on the basis that:

- Explicit consent has been given by the person whose data is being processed; and/or
- It is necessary for the Presbyterian Church in Ireland to carrying out its obligations under employment, social security or social protection law, or a collective agreement; and/or
- Processing is necessary to protect the vital interests of a data subject or another individual where the data subject is physically or legally incapable of giving consent; and/or
- The Presbyterian Church in Ireland is a not-for-profit membership organisation with a religious aim and the processing relates only to members or former members or those who have regular contact with it in connection with its purposes, and no disclosure is made to a third party without consent of the person whose data is being processed; and/or
- Processing is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, or scientific and historical research purposes or statistical purposes.

6. Data Integrity and Security

We comply with our obligations under data protection regulations by keeping personal data up to date; by storing and destroying it securely; by not collecting or retaining excessive amounts of data; by protecting personal data from loss, misuse, unauthorised access and disclosure and by ensuring that appropriate technical measures are in place to protect personal data.

7. Sharing your personal data

Your data will not be shared outside of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, except where required to do so by law, or with trusted third parties (mailing, cloud storage, printing etc.), and only once satisfied that any such use of data will accord with this policy. Explicit, informed consent will be sought from individuals whenever and wherever required in accordance with data protection legislation.

8. How long do we keep your personal data?

The Presbyterian Church in Ireland will only be retained for as long as it is legitimately required to fulfil the purpose or purposes for which it is required. This will include compliance with statutory retention periods.

We will regularly review the data we hold and securely delete or destroy any personal data that is no longer necessary for processing.

9. Your rights and your personal data

Unless subject to an exemption under the GDPR, you have the following rights with respect to your personal data: -

- The right to request a copy of your personal data which PCI hold about you;
- The right to request that PCI correct any personal data if it is found to be inaccurate or out of date;
- The right to request your personal data is erased where it is no longer necessary for PCI to retain such data;
- The right to withdraw your consent to the processing at any time
- The right to request that PCI provide you with your personal data and, where possible, to transmit that data directly to another data controller
- The right, where there is a dispute in relation to the accuracy or processing of your personal data, to request a restriction is placed on further processing;
- The right to object to the processing of personal data.

- The right to lodge a complaint with the Information Commissioner's Office.

10. Further processing

If we wish to use your personal data for a new purpose, not covered by this Data Privacy Notice, then we will provide you with a new notice explaining this new use prior to commencing the processing and setting out the relevant purposes and processing conditions. Where and whenever necessary, we will seek your prior consent to the new processing.
